An appreciative audience from LNN and Trinity Cathedral gathered to hear Pam Maben's presentation about Ariadne and the labyrinth on Jan. 14. Pam did a wonderful presentation, and the labyrinth walk was lovely. Alas, I was not prepared to take pictures in such dim lighting. However, the pictures will still be a reminder of a beautiful evening. If you have friends who are not on the LNN e-mail list, please forward this info to them.

As winter gradually changes into Spring, there are many interesting labyrinth opportunities around the Northwest.

I have just updated the LNN Calendar, and there are lots of interesting events. I suspect that some regular events haven't been submitted for the 2010 Calendar.

Please check to be sure your events are listed.

Be sure to check out Blog Talk Radio on Mondays at 3:30 PM. You'll find details on the LNN calendar.

Tuesday February 9 will be a Labyrinth & SoulCollage Day of Recollection:

Walking the Path of Love, with Val Hornburg

Sunday, March 7 will be LNN's Mid-Winter Book Discussion Group & Tea Party led by DC Donohue

We'll be talking about Lauren
Artress' book "Walking a Sacred Path"

So, it's time to start reading or re-reading this interesting and important labyrinth book.

Details on these and many other interesting labyrinth events can be found on the LNN Calendar
